THE ITALIAN MINISTRY OF ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT, CONFINDUSTRIA FEDERORAFI AND THE RESPONSIBLE JEWELLERY COUNCIL (RJC) ANNOUNCE MOU AGREEMENT

The Italian Ministry of Economic Development, Confindustria Federorafi and RJC announced on 18 May they have agreed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to work cooperatively on advancing their shared objectives to improve social, environmental and labour practices and good governance in the Italian jewellery sector.

Activities around these objectives focus on a seminar series, designed for companies belonging to the main Italian gold manufacturing districts, as well as for a guidance initiative on due diligence in the supply chain and for the development of a first set of indicators suited for communicating and managing ethical and environmental impacts of jewellery companies.

All initiatives will be complementary to the spreading of responsible principles contained in the OECD Due Diligence Guidance for responsible supply chains of minerals from conflict-affected and high-risk areas. The participating organisations will collaborate to ensure their initiatives are mutually supportive. To that end, RJC will provide concrete support to Italian jewellery companies who wish to commit to responsible business practices through its certification standards: RJC Member Certification for diamonds, gold and platinum group metals and the Chain of Custody Certification for gold and platinum group metals.

"Our Ministry of Economic Development - said Dr Tripoli, Head of the Department for Enterprise and internationalization – has a strong commitment to cooperate with all organizations - such as the prestigious RJC and Federorafi – in order to disseminate OECD guidelines on responsible business conduct in the Italian jewellery supply chain".

"I hope that this memorandum will strengthen a shared culture of corporate social responsibility, contributing to awareness raising on ethical jewellery," continued Dr Tripoli.

"This cooperation with the Ministry of Economic Development and RJC represents a pivotal step for the Italian jewellery industry. The Italian jewellery sector is still a leading player worldwide but now experiencing a difficult financial time in exports. Italian savoir-faire, creativity and jewellery expertise no longer suffice, we now need to commit to responsible business practices and grant the source, the quality and integrity of our jewellery products, offering a more competitive tool to our industry. I am confident that a strong liaison with the Italian Ministry of Economic Development and the international RJC will lead to a very positive synergy."

and outcome," said Licia Mattioli, President, Confindustria Federorafi.

"RJC enthusiastically welcomes this new formal relationship among our institutions. Working together with the Italian Ministry of Economic Development and our Trade Association Member Confindustria Federorafi towards common goals will strengthen our collective efforts towards consumer confidence and responsible business practices throughout the jewellery supply chain in Italy. RJC has been active in the development of the OECD Due Diligence Guidance for the gold sector, and Italy plays a critical role in the gold jewellery supply chain. We are looking forward to the benefits this collaboration will bring to Italian jewellery companies," said Michael Rae, RJC's Chief Executive Officer.

A vibrant, stylized illustration serves as the background. It depicts a woman in a red swimsuit sunbathing on a white lounge chair by a pool. A small cocktail glass sits in the pool. In the sky, a white airplane flies past a large, bright orange sun with radiating lines. To the right, a koala hangs from a green tree branch. A tiger's head is visible at the bottom left. Various green plants, flowers, and bees are scattered throughout the scene.

Does luxury fashion play a role in this?

Jewellery environmental impacts are mainly linked to the mining activities necessary for the minerals extraction:

- Removal of large quantities of soil from the earth
- Energy use and emissions
- Waste and recycling
- Use of water
- Displace communities
- Pollution (mercury)
- Destruction pristine environments
- Threat to biodiversity/frontier forests

Nearly ¾ of active mines sites in regions that have been defined as having high conservation value.

Does luxury fashion play a role in this?

A country's natural resources should be the basis for:

- Economic Growth
- Poverty reduction
- Sustainable development

HOWEVER resources rich countries are (too often) characterised by conflicts, poverty, corruption, civil strife, lower (and distorted) economic growth and environmental degradation.

This reality can't be ignored any more.

Does luxury fashion play a role in this?

Where we can go from here

WWF is a Fund for Nature, and it has developed its first collaborations with some important brands from the jewellery industry to support its worldwide conservation projects:

Where we can go from here

Later on WWF started asking for sustainability commitments from its luxury partners:

Chopard

Where we can go from here

---

At the same time WWF opened an ongoing confrontation with some of the major financial institutions around the world to support the development of their policies about the mining and extractive industries financing.

By attaching sustainability criteria to their lending and investment conditions, financial institutions are helping raise standards in critical markets.

The aim of these collaborations is to facilitate the transition towards a more responsible approach of those policies and to help financial institutions to:

- showing commitment to sustainable mining
- reducing the financial and reputation risks that institutions are exposed to in the sector
- enabling institutions to understand the main issues surrounding mining financing

Where we can go from here

WWF now ask to the luxury business to take a step further, engaging directly with its core business:

- luxury brands will continue to be criticized until they provide independent guarantees of the sustainability and ethical credentials of their animal-derived products and other commodities;
- it's unacceptable to charge such high premiums for clothing/jewels which don't have guarantees that they've been produced in a fair and responsible way.

→ WWF calls on luxury brand companies to wake up to their environmental/ethical responsibilities.

Where we can go from here

Luxury consumers are part of an affluent, global élite that is increasingly well educated and concerned about social and environmental issues

→ the way luxury is perceived is changing, deeper values are fully embodied in the sourcing, manufacture, marketing and distribution of products and services.

Authentic luxury brands provide:

- the greatest positive contributions to all affected by their creation
- identify their consumers as having the means/motivation to respect both people and the planet

Responsible brands are more attractive to consumers and are able to build more comfortable relationships with regulators, local communities, investors and the media.
