

RJC Standards Committee

10 August 2011

The RJC Standards Committee is comprised of representatives from each stage of the diamond and gold jewellery supply chain. The Committee's role is to oversee the design, implementation and continuous improvement of the RJC Certification System. The Committee works in consultation with the Standards Consultative Panel, comprised of external stakeholders.

The elected Member Forum representatives, two for each Forum, are highlighted in green. Member Forum representatives on the Standards Committee will be eligible to formally vote on issues or motions, in the event that a vote is required because consensus on a specific point could not be achieved. Nominations for vacancies are welcome.

Those who are not Forum representatives on the Standards Committee participate in Standards Committee meetings and deliberations. The broader Committee is open to all Members and works towards consensus in its standards development processes, drawing on the collective input of a range of stakeholders.
